First Big Silk Factory
to Be Close to Glendale

ANNOUNCEMENT is made today that the Thieme Hosiery Co. is to erect a factory to cost around one million dollars, on San Fernando road just south of the Glendale city limits.

The parent organization is an eastern concern, organized over thirty years ago, and it has already established a market for its goods.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is to be given the credit for bringing this plant to Southern California, for it worked on the deal for two years.

While the actual location of the factory is in Los Angeles, Glendale will receive more benefit from the plant than Los Angeles.

THE project will eventually provide employment for nearly 2500 operatives and the use of tons of raw material. The company will manufacture full-fashioned hosiery and allied products for distribution in the western markets.

WE reiterate that Glendale's growth is assured. The fact that the large moneyed interests are looking our way substantiates our claim.

The time is coming, and is not very far off, when San Fernando road will be lined on both sides with factories.

BUILDING PERMITS for the month will be given a substantial boost today. The Grand View Memorial Park association is going to make application for a permit amounting to $60,000 for a mausoleum for its cemetery. This brings the building permits for the day to $82,000, and for the month to date over $150,000.

CENTRAL AVENUE ASSOCIATION TO HOLD CONFERENCE

For the purpose of discussing street improvements, including lighting, paving and street widening, the Central Avenue Improvement association has called a meeting with property owners on South Central avenue, to be held at the Magnolia avenue school to-night at 7:30.

All residents, owning property south of Broadway on Central avenue, are urged to be present, as it is expected that the fruits of this meeting will constitute several important steps toward securing the desired improvements. Special speakers have been secured, and a general discussion will be invited.

Mrs. Genevieve Smith, past district deputy, officially introduced Mrs. John Strother of Glendale, who was recently commissioned as district deputy president of this district.

Columbus Avenue Gets $24,555; Glendale Avenue, $59,370; Acacia $28,750, and Grand View School $15,851

GRAND VIEW PLANS HUGE MAUSOLEUM

$60,000 Permit for the
First Unit Is Taken
Out

BE TWELVE IN ALL
To Be the Largest of Its Kind in the United States

Construction work on the first unit of the mammoth mausoleum to be erected at the Grand View cemetery will be started Monday morning, according to an announcement made by Len C. Davis, president and manager of the Grand View cemetery company, this morning.

A permit for this first unit was taken out by Mr. Davis today. The cost of this first unit will be $60,000, and it will be the first of twelve similar units to be constructed at that cemetery. The second unit will be started immediately upon the completion of the first, which will be in about eight months from this time. Mr. Davis states that when this mausoleum is finished it will be the largest of its kind in the United States. The work of constructing will be under the direction of C. A. Cornell, who has built several similar structures in California, and under the supervision of Mr. Davis.

The unit will be of re-inforced concrete, 25 tons of steel to be used in the initial structure. It will be 35 by 300 feet in size and will be erected on the north boundary line of the property. It will contain 400 crypts, more than half of which have already been assigned. On account of so many crypts having been sold before work on the structure is started it has been termed the "community mausoleum." This "pre-construction sale" has resulted in the crypts being sold at unusually low prices, it is understood.

BOULDER CANYON BOND ISSUE IS DEFEATED

Los Angeles Citizens Decline to Spend $35-
000,000 on Project

[By Associated Press]

LOS ANGELES, June 6.—The citizens of Los Angeles declined by their votes at yesterday's municipal election to authorize the issuance of $35,000,000 bonds to be used in power development at Boulder canyon. This was the only one of several bond issues to fail. Those which got the required two-thirds majority provided for $7,500,000 for a new city hall and site; $500,000 for the purchase of additional ground to round out the site for a library already authorized; $15,000,000 for harbor improvements; $2,000,000 for the construction of viaducts over the Los Angeles river and railroads paralleling it, to do away with grade crossings; $1,500,000 for public playgrounds; and votes of approval on proposals to permit the use of Pershing Square, below the surface, for tunnel terminals for electric railroads and to locate the new city hall in the north end of the business district, where a civic center is planned, to include present county and federal buildings and new structures.

Nine councilmen were elected. These included six who succeeded themselves, namely: Robert M. Allan, Ralph L. Criswell, W. J. Sanborn, Walter Mallard, W. C. Mushet, and Fred C. Wheeler.

Boyle Workman and Miles S. Gregory, both of whom have previously held municipal offices, were elected; and the ninth place was still in doubt today between Edwin Baker, state assemblyman, and R. S. Sparks, at present a member of the council. Baker had a light lead with about 70 precincts out of 862 to hear from.

Fifteen tree holders to formulate a new city charter were also named, and seven members of the board of education.

PICTURES OF CITY
Transportation Committee to Attend L. A. Hearing

President Jesse Smith and Harry White of the Glendale chamber of commerce, and President Cameron Thom of the Glendale Realty board, were selected yesterday by the local chamber to represent Glendale on the committee of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando valley, which will have charge of the parks and highway operations of that organization in this valley.

This committee, which will include also the presidents of the various chamber of commerce and realty boards of the valley, will meet at the Hollywood Country club soon to discuss improvements that are for the best interests of the valley as a whole. The three members from Glendale or their substitutes are expected to be at this meeting.

The board cast its ballot as being in favor of the increasing of the annual dues to the San Fernando chamber of commerce from $10 to $25 per year.

An invitation was received from Montrose chamber of commerce inviting members of the board of directors of the Glendale chamber to attend the meeting of that organization last night. Several members of the organization expressed their intention of attending that session.

The matter of having the books of the chamber audited monthly was brought up by a communication from the firm of Olin & Hutchinson, and the matter was laid over for one week.

A letter was read from the state railroad commission stating that the matter of increased rates of the Pasadena-Santa Monica stage line would be heard before that body in Los Angeles on June 9, and invited the members of the chamber who are interested to be present. The transportation committee was authorized to attend this hearing and learn all about the matter.

A resolution was adopted, asking the supervisors of Los Angeles county to purchase additional grounds to the Monte Vista or Sunland park, in order that the increasing demand on the park might be accommodated.

George Karr, chairman of the Civics committee, reported that the council and his committee had at last come to an agreement on the garbage cleanup proposition, and that he believed the committee requested that the city clean up every week rather than once a year.

George Bentley reported that favorable action had been secured from the Glendale council in regard to the Southern Pacific depot site and that he thought the matter would be worked out satisfactorily.

Percy Hayselden, reporting for the publicity committee, stated that he in company with a photographer had made a trip around the city and had secured photographs of various buildings for the booklet that is being gotten out by the chamber.

The prospect of having the map or reproduction of Glendale, which was shown at the industrial exposition, sent to the state fair in Sacramento during the latter part of July, was brought before the chamber. Secretary Sanders reported that there would be no charge for transportation of the feature to or from Sacramento, nor for the space that it would occupy on the grounds. Further particulars will be secured by Secretary Sanders in time for report at next week's meeting.

It was decided to send Secretary Sanders to the postal conference which will be held in San Francisco on June 27, and also to pay the way of Assistant Postmaster Halleck to that meeting.

WAYNE KNITTING MILLS TO BUILD $1,000,000 PLANT NEAR GLENDALE

$6,000,000 Plant of Silk Hosiery Company to Be Moved to City Line in Los Angeles,
Across San Fernando Road

TWO THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED ON PAYROLL

Exact Location of the First Unit Is Withheld Until Deal Is Completed in a Few Days; Seven
Acre Plant to Be Constructed

Negotiations have been concluded for the erection of a large factory branch of the Wayne Knitting Mills on San Fernando road near the southern city limits of Glendale. The first unit will involve a total consideration of $1,000,000, according to official announcement made yesterday by Theodore J. Thieme, president and founder of the company. An official of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce states that it is the plan of the corporation to duplicate its Fort Wayne factory here. This is said to represent an investment of approximately $6,000,000.

It is expected that actual work will be started within ninety days and it is the intention of the builders to have the first unit in operation by the latter part of next year or possibly sooner. The project will mean the future employment of nearly 2500 operatives, the use of tons of raw materials and the production of full-fashioned hosiery and allied products for western distribution.

The first unit of the new plant, which will operate here under the name of the Thieme Hosiery company, will have a frontage of more than 200 feet on the road and will be four stories in height and fire-proof, with the use of concrete and terra cotta for exterior walls and trimming. It is said that the new plant will be the first factory on the Pacific coast to manufacture a full-fashioned silk hosiery.

Mr. Thieme has relinquished his holdings in the Wayne Knitting Mills, but will remain as an executive of the Thieme Brothers company of Ft. Wayne, a silk hose manufacturing concern.

Officials of the California company will be T. F. Thieme, president; Wayne L. Thieme, vice-president; F. H. Ranke, secretary and general manager; J. J. Cavalier, treasurer; C. H. Pidgeon, sales and merchandise manager; Desley M. White, advertising manager, and H. C. Pfeiffer, superintendent.

Theodore J. Thieme established the first successful full-fashioned hosiery mills in the United States in 1881, bringing in the first knitters and machines from Europe. He was the founder of the famous Wayne Knitting Mills of Ft. Wayne, Ind., which recently sold to the Munson interests, and is probably the best known hosiery manufacturing concern in the world.

Mr. Thieme's plan for some time has been to establish a factory either in Los Angeles or Oakland. For two years he and his associates have been making a careful check up of this vicinity.

JOE GRIFFIN IS RECOVERING AT HOSPITAL

C. L. SMITH HAS THE TROUT TO PROVE IT

Brings Home the Fish With the Tales Thereof

By W. L. TAYLOR

There are fishermen who think they are fishermen, and there are others who can not only back up their stories with facts, but concrete evidence as well. C. L. Smith, the popular Chevrolet distributor, is decidedly in the class of the fishermen who always deliver the goods; in fact, he can promise a mess of fish to his friends any time and they need not have any feeling that they will be disappointed.

C. L. Smith and his estimable wife have a cabin at Little Bear, in the San Bernardino mountains, and they spend considerable time there fishing and hiking. During the last month they have made six trips to their cabin and each time brought back two limits. This includes Mrs. Smith for she can wield the rod and line like a veteran fisherman. The last time, Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Smith returned they brought two limits and distributed dozens of juicy rainbow trout among their friends, a goodly number of which were distributed among the Daily Press friends.

To cut C. L. Smith's fish reminds us of the kind that we used to hook from the famous Caney Fork river, that skirts the Cumberland mountains of East Tennessee, and to hear C. L. tell his fish stories also convinces us that Opie Read did not have a monopoly on stories about the funny tribe, but that if he should beat C. L. he would revise some of his best books to meet facts and figures verified by a real fisherman.

Mr. C. L. Smith uses the best equipment he can find. When he dangles his hook in the lake it is laden with golden sinkers, which he never goes to sleep on the job, nor does he ever give up the chase. He just simply hunts till he finds them. His most intimate friends tell me he never buys any fish to make good his promises, he just simply has the ability to get what he goes after, and fishing is his hobby.

A few years ago there was a motorcycle run to Fresno and I was invited to drive up to the Bay City and enjoy the festivities," said Mr. Smith. "I made the promise to the bunch that I would drive through in my machine, stop over at one of the mountain streams, and meet the crowd at their destination with enough fish for breakfast. I actually performed this feat and I have witnesses to bear me out that I actually caught the fish from a mountain stream near Porterville. The only help I had was from a friend who lived in the neighborhood and 'showed me' the streams. After we had eaten breakfast we had fish left over, and everybody was happy.

"I was the first person, I think, to bring the golden trout from Mt. Whitney to Los Angeles. There are only two places in the world where the golden trout live—Mt. Whitney and a resort in Italy. I intend to go up again soon and bring back a big fish and have it mounted," said Mr. Smith. "I have been a fisherman for 45 years, and while I do not make fishing a profession I regard it as a big part of my life."

The buzz of new Chevrolets began to drown our conversation and C. L. saw several new machines just sold being delivered to satisfied buyers, so he forgot fishing and began to count his money.

MANKIND SHRINKS AS IT GROWS OLD

OAKLAND, Calif., June 6 (United Press).—Mankind has shrunk to his present five-foot to six-foot height, from a giant averaging 18 feet tall, says Samuel Hubbard, archaeologist of the Oakland public museum, who plans another trip this month into the Grand Canyon, to secure evidence this country was inhabited by a race of monsters some 15 million years ago.

Hubbard thinks the modern creature that calls himself a man is a mere pygmy—that Adam and Eve would have been ashamed of him. They were at least 18 feet tall, says Hubbard, who thinks also that their garden of Eden probably was here in California.

Man probably originated on the continent of Atlantis, now covered by the Atlantic, Hubbard says, and mankind from Atlantis into Europe, Africa and America, and continued his spread over the world from there.

LIMA BEAN IS THE NEWEST STYLE OF FIGURE

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press (Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, June 6.—(United Press) What will eventually become of the feminine figure?

In recent years the ideal of perfect womanhood has dwindled from a "perfect 36" to an imperfect 34. We used to think that a girl couldn't be beautiful unless she had a figure with a certain amount of natural curves. We accepted the idea that Venus de Milo was the perfect type of womanhood and we sought to be as nearly like her as possible.

Be the fashionable feminine figure has grown smaller and smaller in the last decade until today an angular curvesize 34 is considered the ideal figure. "Perfect 36's" are all dieting or taking up violent physical exercises in order to reduce.

The models of a year ago are out of work and in their places are an emaciated lot of tall, gaunt women that look like refugees. Most of them are so painfully thin that they would have been shelved as old maids ten years ago.

The Lima Bean Shape

Their figures remind one of the traditional "bar of soap after a week's wash." They resemble in shape the lima bean and their only curves are located at the joining of the foot to the ankle or perhaps on the left leg where a little wad of bill bulges the stocking. Their soda appetites augment the bank roll, if not the figure.

To be in perfect form today a woman must be hipless, waistless, and footless. It's pretty hard on the girl who has been brought up to believe in athletics, for she can't hope to compete with the women who look as if they were in the last stages of a wasting disease.

The normal, wholesome body is decidedly not in the style, according to the modistes and gown manufacturers. Some of us, however, will be old fashioned enough to continue believing that Venus is the perfect type of beauty, regardless of the 1923 verdict. Others will diet for style's sake and steam themselves in Turkish baths from size 33's to 34's.

In the meantime what's to become of womanhood if this narrowing and reducing of the feminine figure continues?

FASHION NOTES

Skirts are growing shorter as summer advances. Most of the cotton fabrics show skirts that are quite full, but silk gowns continue on slender lines.

New turbans that are draped on the head as a party for automobile driving. They are made out of a yard of material that is one-half of a yard wide. The center of the material is gathered into a buckle which is placed over the forehead. The material is then drawn back to the nape of the neck and is then split so as to form two ends which drape about the head in a turban fashion and fold under at the sides of the head. If properly adjusted a turban of this sort looks as though it were a hat and not a drape wound about the head.

Colored voile undergarments ornamented with rosebuds embroidered in colors are cool and launder easily.

Mr. Fleming was a soldier of the Civil war and a member of the local post, G. A. R.

FORESTS MUST BE PROTECTED FROM INSECTS AND DISEASE

"The protection of forests and forest products from insects is of scarcely less importance than their protection from fire," declares the forest service, in an article in the 1922 yearbook of the United States department of agriculture, entitled, "Timber, Mine or Crop?"

Losses due to insect attacks upon living trees and crude, finished and utilized forest products are estimated by the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, at $300,000,000 annually. These losses emphasize the need of educational work and the development of systematic control measures which now are woefully inadequate, the article states.

The western pine beetle, the gypsy moth, the chestnut blight and the white pine blister rust are the most damaging of the insects and diseases which are now attacking the trees and forest products.

"By far the most serious menace of disease to forest crops at the present time lies in the imported epidemic," states the forest service, "The chestnut blight, imported from eastern Asia on nursery stock in the early nineties, has all but exterminated this useful tree throughout the northern range. Quarantines of foreign tree seeds, the only effective means of preventing such diseases, has only recently been put in force.

"All together, the most important example of this type of disease is the white pine blister rust. Introduced from Europe within the past 20 years, it is now widespread through the northern range of the eastern white pine, and has recently been found extensively in British Columbia and to a limited extent in Washington on the western white pine.

The very existence of the western white and sugar pine forests is threatened. Under eastern conditions a financially practicable method of local control has been worked out which will save the eastern white pine in the areas of its greatest commercial value, but whether these methods can be adapted to western conditions remains to be demonstrated. During the past four years, in cooperation with the northeastern and lake states, a total of 1,025,384 acres has been cleared of current and gooseberry bushes, at an average cost of 35 cents per acre, thus protecting the white pine in this area and making it safe for the future production of this valuable crop."

A five-year occupational study of hundreds of high school pupils, both boys and girls, revealed that the boys of comparatively low intelligence chose vocations far beyond their powers, only nine per cent being engaged, at the end of five years, in occupations as favorable as was their original preference. "Either the girls chose more wisely as to fitness," says the report, "or else they were more moderate in their ambitions."

"The situation is an explanation of the justification of the blind alley job, the vice of which consists in staying too long in that particular place. Many such jobs have a proper place in a socialized economic order; they are important cogs in the commercial and industrial machine, and if used only temporarily, serve a purpose in enabling boys to earn needed money while preparing themselves for something better."

Cooperative insect control on a large scale is at present being undertaken on federal, state and private lands on the Pacific coast and Rock Mountain forests where the bureau of entomology estimates that the cost of bringing the western white pine under control will be less than $150,000. During the past ten years the stumpage value of the trees this insect has killed runs into many millions of dollars, the forest service declares.

Other insects and diseases also take an enormous toll every year, it is stated, and the cost in dollars to fight these damaging pests would be but a fraction of the loss they cause.

Copies of the yearbook containing this article may be secured free upon application to the division of publications, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts. Ask for "Timber: Mine or Crop?"

BAY CITY FOLKS STRANGE ACTORS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6 (United Press).—"Ah, there, mother," cried Charles C. Arnett, 25, to Mrs. George Burns, and rushed up to her and seized her in his arms. She struggled, as he was a perfect stranger to her. Then she screamed. The man vigorously bit her nose.

She was taken to the hospital for treatment, the end of her nose having been literally severed by the stranger's teeth. He is being held for a sanity examination.

This is only the latest in a number of ludicrously funny cases. At San Mateo, a man who is perfectly sane in all other regards and perhaps sane in his one oddity, insists on working a la natural—or raw as he puts it. He's a good center and has been in court several times for appearing on a roof clad only in his gold-rimmed glasses. He's out on probation now.

In Oakland recently a doctor climbed the side of his house and danced along the ridge-pole in a near-natural state. He interjected loud whoops in his dancing, attracting a huge crowd.

FIVE MILLION BOYS LABOR GAINFULLY IN UNITED STATES

[By Associated Press]

PORTSCHACH, Austria, June 6.

Is your boy in or headed for that group, composing three-quarters of the world's workers with hands and brain, who are misfits or ill-trained? What is being done and should be done to meet this and related problems is dealt with in a report prepared for presentations June 5 to the second world's conference of Y. M. C. A. workers with boys by an international vocational commission.

A section of the report dealing with the vocational status of boyhood in the United States was prepared by C. C. Robinson of New York City, author of vocational books and secretary of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. for work with employed boys.

The largest hearing Mr. Robinson reports, both in numbers and variety of representation, was at San Francisco, where the junior high school and the private school for teaching trades came in for strong commendation. Labor representatives favored continuation of schools, boys trying to attend school at night.

Approximately 5,000,000 boys, 14 to 20 years of age, are gainfully employed in the United States, the report points out. In most sections of the country state laws prevent boys from working earlier than 14 years of age and there is a tendency of the part of social workers to push this age to 16 years.

Rapid advances have been made by public schools in vocational help in the past decade. Private trade schools have made valuable contributions in pioneering in various types of education. The new plan of the junior division of the U. S. Employment Service is a hopeful step.

Studies conducted by Mr. Robinson among 133 boys as to their ambitions compared with their father's occupations show a definite tendency to move up in the social scale. However, nearly as many boys as have fathers in skilled trades desire to take up similar work, the high pay being the attraction.

A five-year occupational study of hundreds of high school pupils, both boys and girls, revealed that the boys of comparatively low intelligence chose vocations far beyond their powers, only nine per cent being engaged, at the end of five years, in occupations as favorable as was their original preference. "Either the girls chose more wisely as to fitness," says the report, "or else they were more moderate in their ambitions."

"The situation is an explanation of the justification of the blind alley job, the vice of which consists in staying too long in that particular place. Many such jobs have a proper place in a socialized economic order; they are important cogs in the commercial and industrial machine, and if used only temporarily, serve a purpose in enabling boys to earn needed money while preparing themselves for something better."

HOG CENSUS TAKERS ABROAD

PORTLAND, Ore., June 5.—(United Press).—You see some one perched on the rail of your hog pen inspecting the animals intently—don't shoot.

He's probably not a world-beater at all, no matter what he looks like. More than likely he is just the rural mail carrier on your way taking the annual hog census.

The census last year, taken the same way, resulted in accurate government information on market conditions, and Portland carriers have just received instructions to take a similar check this year.

The human census is only taken once in ten years. Once again proving the truth of the declaration that "pigs is pigs."

'HE'LL OUTGROW IT'

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc. (Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

There is a phrase altogether too often used by parents with reference to minor maladies and conduct disorders of young children. It is the phrase 'He'll outgrow it.'

Suddenly, unaccountably, a child displays, for instance, a singular reluctance to go outdoors alone. He does not say why he does not want to go outdoors alone. He may even say that he does not know why.

The parent urges him, perhaps compels him, to go outdoors. Even if the reluctance continues it occasions no serious thought on the parent's part. 'He'll outgrow it,' is the consoling reflection. And it may be that, to all appearance, the child after a while does outgrow it.

Another child, as unaccountably, becomes afflicted with "night terrors."

Put to bed, he falls asleep, and for a time sleeps quietly. Then cries for help are heard. The child is found sitting bolt upright, or possibly standing trembling in a corner of his room, staring dazedly about him.

It is an alarming spectacle, and, rightly, often results in the calling of a physician. But there are parents who, knowing that "night terrors" occur only in children of certain ages, regard them as of no particular significance, murmur "He'll outgrow it," and content themselves with quieting the child as often as he needs quieting.

"He'll outgrow it" is again their thought, if the child, instead of becoming afflicted with "night terrors," begins to talk or walk in his sleep. And, to confirm optimistic view, the sleep-talking or sleep-walking after a time does cease.

Or it may be a question of a child's displaying uncommon bashfulness. He is so bashful that he weeps when he finds himself in the presence of strangers.

"He'll outgrow it," his parents knowingly tell one another. "All children are more or less bashful."

Still another child is addicted to nail-biting. It is an ugly habit, and the parents set about breaking him of it. But it seldom occurs to them to wonder why their child should have developed this particular habit, and the reassuring idea "He'll outgrow it" is once more uppermost in their minds.

Yet actually nail-biting, extreme bashfulness, sleep-talking, sleep-walking, "night terrors," fear of being alone and kindred eccentricities of the young are danger signals, warning of nervous disturbances and stresses that should be investigated.

The conditions of which they are indicative may or may not pass away coincidental with the cessation of the signals, the "growing out" of them. In many cases, unless the warnings are heeded and investigation made by competent physicians, more serious symptoms of nervous trouble may later appear.

"When I was a child I was very bashful." "When I was a child I suffered greatly from 'night terrors.'" "When I was a child I walked in my sleep." Such are statements made again and again by adult victims of nervousness, when at last they are driven to specialists to seek relief from conditions that might not have tormented them had the early danger signals been heeded.

So beware of "He'll outgrow it." It is a phrase that may come over-readily to the tongue when the occasion provokes it is actually of more or less sinister significance.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED—TO ANNOY

The pretty woman with curly hair lay in bed and frowned at the ceiling. It was gold and blue, festooned with painted ribbons and pink-limbed cherubs, with a casual scattering of rose petals thrown in for good measure.

There was a cluster light in the middle of the ceiling, and the pretty woman suddenly realized that it was the light that was annoying her so.

She had persisted that the light did not bother her when her nurse had attempted to shade it the night before.

"I don't want to lie in the shadow and feel as if I were going to die and as if you were all tip-toeing around just waiting for the event to happen," she had said, which was rather unreasonable for her, because lights are a very well known source of annoyance in a sick room, necessary as they are.

The patients who like to lie in the dark are few and far between. When a light shines directly in a patient's face it seems but reasonable that something should be done to shield the patient. Or so the nurse had thought.

However, the patient was one of the little Dresden china women with a cast iron will, so at her command the light had been left unshaded.

"Nurse!" she called, peremptorily, "how can you cover that light so that the room won't be in darkness?"

"With paper," the nurse said, taking up a piece as she spoke. "I hate paper. It rattles," said the pretty woman. "And I won't have one of those dark silk handkerchiefs pinned over it either. They are so depressing!"

The nurse put down the green silk handkerchief she had been about to use, with a hopeless feeling in her heart.

Then she thought about a parasol and brought one from the wardrobe.

"You're not going to put that up in the house, are you?" the patient almost shrieked. "It's unlucky! I wouldn't dream of raising an umbrella in the house. Goodness knows, we have had enough bad luck as it is."

"But this is not an umbrella," said the nurse appeasingly. "It's a parasol—really. That's quite different. Just wait till you see how nicely it will shade the light."

And the nurse proceeded to tie the handle of the parasol to the chandelier, turning the opened parasol toward the head of the bed.

The result was that while the patient's head and face were in shadow and her eyes shaded from the light, the rest of the room was not in the least gloomy.

TAKING OUT SPOTS

"Fruit stains are rather complex, but practically all of them can be removed from wash materials if taken when fresh," said Miss Edna Freney, Avery of the home economics department at the State College of Washington in a recent talk over radio broadcaster KFAE.

"Simply pour boiling water thru them from a height. Patch stains are more resistant than some others. If the stain still remains after the water has been tried, dab on a little oxalic acid, or use some potassium permanganate. You will find these two spot chasers very useful, so I am going to tell you something about them.

"Oxalic acid is a very strong poison, and should be kept out of reach of children, and marked with poison. It can be bought at any drug store. A 5 per cent solution is best. As it attacks the fibres of cloth, even cotton or linen, it should be rinsed out immediately after using.

"Potassium permanganate is made by dissolving a teaspoonful of the crystals in a pint of water. This can be bottled, and applied when needed with a medicine dropper. It will leave a brownish-red color which has to be removed by placing the material in oxalic acid and then rinsing. Before using it, always try it on a piece of the material first to see if it affects the dye. Some people use this for removing almost every sort of stain, but not everyone is so successful."

Next week Miss Avery will talk on stains from cocoa and chocolate, and on general rules for spot removing.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S CABINET HOLDS SESSION

Assemble in New Club
Rooms on South
Brand

A very satisfactory business session of officers and other members of the cabinet of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's Club was held Tuesday evening at the new club quarters in the Glendale Commercial School, 224 South Brand boulevard, at which nearly all the members of the staff were present, viz., Mrs. Mary Barker, vice-president; Mrs. Anita Anderson, treasurer; Miss Edna Platt, recording secretary; Miss Lucille Crowell, corresponding secretary; Dr. Laura Brown, vice-president at large; Miss Gertrude Gibbs, presiding officer; and members who were elected to the chairmanship of committees as follows: Ways and means, Mrs. Loretta Williams.

Occupational, Miss Clara Sayre. Program, Dr. Elizabeth Early. Friendship, Miss Helen Tupper. Publicity, Mrs. Ethel Ridell. Legislation, Miss Alice McCoy. Three absentees were appointed to committees as follows: Hospitality, Miss Julia Moniot. Auditing, Miss Myrtle Knapp. Membership, Miss Ethel Ford.

A very satisfactory report was submitted by the treasurer which was supplemented by figures secured from the house committee which showed the organization to be starting its new year practically free from debt and with collections in prospect which will substantially replenish its treasury.

A communication was read from Miss Cora Wilson, chairman of the vocational department of the District Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in which she requested an audience at the next session of the full club to explain a plan of reorganization of the vocational work of the district and the support desired from the Glendale club. The cabinet voted to invite her to the regular meeting to be held Tuesday night, and requested Dr. Brown to invite the Burbank Business Women's Club to meet with the organization.

The cabinet also voted for the organization of an outing section in which members could enroll for hikes and other excursions; and for a visiting committee whose members would call upon members who are not well acquainted in the club. Miss Margaret B. Gilbert, who has been conducting a canfield for business men and women in Pasadena, and who would like to establish one in Glendale, was introduced by Dr. Brown and explained her plans and hopes and the character of the canfield she would conduct. She in turn introduced Miss G. Guenila, also of Pasadena, who she decided to locate in Glendale.

PUFFER RECITAL IS DELIGHT TO AUDIENCE

Mrs. Virginia Freeman's
Pupil Surprises Her
Hearers

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

The auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce was filled with appreciative and very enthusiastic listeners Tuesday evening at the song recital in which Mrs. Virginia Freeman presented her talented pupil, Mildred Dixon Puffer, mezzo-soprano, assisted by Julius Kranz, violinist-composer, Mrs. Gertrude Champlain Erb, pianiste, and J. A. Meyers, cellist.

It was a beautiful program, varied enough to charm the most capricious guest, and of a nature to display the powers of all the artists. The ambitious number with which it opened, scene and aria from "Der Freischütz" was a revelation of the present capacity and latent possibilities of Mrs. Puffer's voice and visibly surprised her hearers. It would be hard to say which of her other numbers gave the greatest pleasure. She was delightful in "Light Footed Snow" (Lie), and in "Le Nil" (Leroux) for which a violin obligato was contributed by Mr. Kranz, and her last numbers were of special interest because they were the compositions of Mr. Kranz, who accompanied her at the piano. These songs, "Love in Autumn," "Mah Honey," and "February," afforded charming contrasts. Mr. Kranz's creative powers as well as his artistry were also revealed in two of his solo numbers which were his own compositions, "Enchantment" and "At Twilight," which drew much applause.

The concert was likewise an introduction of the assisting artists as a professional trio now open to engagement, and their two groups which included Schubert and Schumann numbers and Moskowski's "Spanish Dance" were warmly applauded. A good many members of the Madrigal club and other musical organizations of the city were present and at the close of the concert went forward to greet the artists and congratulate them and Mrs. Freeman on a most successful evening. Mrs. Freeman was called to the platform and presented with a beautiful bouquet.

On June 16 at K. of P. hall she will present another pupil, Mrs. Gretana Cordrey, contralto, who will be assisted by Miss Helen Sayre and Miss Ruth Holshaugen, who will sing in costume a group of old fashioned songs. The recitals she is arranging are calculated to develop the poise and confidence of soloists before the footlights and later in the season she plans to give a big affair which will include ensemble groups of pupils.

CERRITOS AND PACIFIC GIRL TEAMS CLASH

At an indoor ball game between the senior girl teams of Cerritos and Pacific Avenue, played Monday afternoon, the Cerritos girls won with a score of 22 to 20. On the same afternoon junior girl teams of the same schools clashed, the Pacific Avenue players winning with a score of 31 to 13. These victories place the Cerritos senior girls and the Pacific junior girls in line to play northern divisions of the city schools for championships.

"LAND OF DOLLS" REHEARSALS CALLED

Rehearsals for the children's musical comedy, "In the Land of Dolls," will be held on Thursday afternoon of this week at the Woods' Studio, 122 W. Milford street, at 3 o'clock. The play will be given on the evening of Tuesday, June 12, on the High school stage, under the auspices of Community Service. One of the most sparkling numbers has been chosen to open the program, Jingle Bells dance, given by eight girls all dressed alike in pure white sleighing costumes with white muffs from which are suspended tinkling bells. The eight girls are Ruth Bender, Virginia Farrow, Dorothy Doane, Dorothea Bourne, Johanna Michel, Nedra Bell Wilson, Dorothy Bissinger, Esther Elliott. A very clever dramatic piece of work will be given by Rex Northland as Limpy, King of the Dolls. This young boy has created a wonderfully humorous character study as a rag doll, and is sure to be one of the hits of the evening. The entertainment is free to the public, and every man, woman and child in Glendale is invited to enjoy the amusing and imaginative program.

CITY TEACHERS' CLUB TO MEET

A special meeting of the City Teachers' club called by the newly elected president, Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, was held Tuesday afternoon at which the organization voted to send two official representatives to the National Educational association to be held in San Francisco, and also to the International Conference of Educators to be held in Oakland, expenses of these special delegates to be paid by the club. There was no program, except some numbers by the Teachers' Choral club, which is to contribute to the big program to be put on at the Broadway school auditorium Thursday and Friday evenings by the glee clubs and orchestras of city schools under the direction of the music supervisors, Miss Elsie Bremmner and her assistant Mrs. Etta Kent.

UNIQUE SHOWER IS GIVEN MISS MURLE BOWEN

Ranch Note Is Motif in Gits to the Bride
to Be

One of the most unique wedding showers to be given in Glendale during the romance month of June, was that accorded Miss Murle Bowen yesterday afternoon at the home of Mary Ostergard, 211 West Garfield.

A galvanized tub, the top covered with saw dust, was the utensil serving to hold the many contributions of the guests. This was brought into the room where the bride-elect and her fiance, Edward Clauson of Upland, awaited.

As the showering was to live on a ranch following the wedding, which is to take place the latter part of June, the two who brought the tub into the room were attired as the farmer lad and lass, overalls, sunbonnet and gingham dress lending the desired rustic effect.

The first rite was the presentation of an apron to Miss Bowen and a straw hat to Mr. Clauson. Each was then given a toy shovel, and instructed to investigate the contents of the tub. A generous miscellaneous shower of lovely gifts was found by the happy young couple.

Miss Bowen is a popular member of the Central Avenue Methodist Church, having a host of friends in the southern part of the city. A large group of friends were present at the shower, including Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Nern, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster, Rev. G. Brink, pastor of the Central Avenue Methodist Church, and his wife; Mr. and Mrs. Clarke A. Bowen, parents of the bride; the Misses Jewel Garner, Esther Besant, Mildred Williams, Helen Muhleman, Ella Dykston, Ruth Hunt, Jessie Hunt, Liberty Somers, Alta Bowen, Mrs. Ostergard, and the Messrs. Alvin Hall, Leland Baker, Will Marple, Ruthford Wallace, Roy Forney, Ernest Bowen, Albert Hewitt and Harold Williams. Mrs. Rodney Nern of 611 East Chestnut assisted Miss Ostergard as hostess.

The luncheon will be at 12:30 o'clock, June 14, and with the exception of the change of date other plans will remain the same.

Many Reservations for Dinner Dance

Between fifty and sixty reservations have already been made for the dinner-dance of the drama section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, which will be held Friday night at the clubhouse. HOW TO GET AHEAD WASHINGTON, June 6 (United Press).—Here's a story for boys who think all the chances of reaching the top through "eternally sticking to it" are gone.

Willis J. Fowler came from Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1886, and entered the service of the government at $900 a year. He was one of the army of $900 clerks. A good many of these boys today are dead; a very few of them are still in the government service, and of those few, some are still in relatively minor positions.

The other day Fowler was appointed first deputy controller of the currency at considerably more than $900. His recipe for "getting there" is short and pointed. It is: "Get to know your business, and then work at it."

STENCILLED SILKS For decorative purposes there is a silk from India stenciled in gold and colors. It is also used for dresses and is very reasonable for anything so attractive.

AIRPLANES AT $500.00 FOR BRITISH AMATEURS

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, June 5.—Airplane flying promises to become as popular in England as bicycling or motor ing. British manufacturers are now perfecting light models of aircraft that will cost little more than a motorcycle. They leave the ground with a few yards run and land at less than 25 miles an hour.

In an effort further to popularize the British under secretary of state for air has offered $2,500 for a light airplane competition confined to British machines with a maximum of eight horsepower. The cost of the airplane when completed is not to exceed $500.

SO. AFRICA TURNS FROM MINING TO FARMING

(CHICAGO, Ill. (United Press).—Agriculture is gradually replacing mining as the premier occupation of natives of South Africa, according to statistics of the National Institute of Progressive Farming here.

Statistics formerly showed $1 per cent mining and 13 per cent agriculture, but have changed to mining 63 per cent and farming 30 per cent, the institute said. Some credit for the growth of agriculture may be attributed to American labor-saving farm implements being introduced in the country.

A. R. A. WORK IN RUSSIA DESCRIBED

NIJNI NOVGOROD (By mail).—

Dr. Mark D. Godfrey, district physician of the American Relief Administration for Simbirska, paid a visit of inspection to the Russian hospitals here which have been receiving American medical supplies and witnessed a number of operations.

To illustrate the completeness of the American equipment in the hospitals, which was made possible by the congressional authorization of the gift of surplus army medical supplies and by a contribution to the value of several million dollars by the American Red Cross to the American Relief Administration for distribution in Russia, Dr. Godfrey reported:

"Some interesting observations were made at one of the hospitals where several operations were witnessed.

"The patients were prepared for the operating room, scrubbed with A. R. A. soap, shaved with an A. R. A. razor, clad in an A. R. A. shirt and socks, carried on an A. R. A. stretcher, put on an A. R. A. operating table, anaesthetized, cut open, sewed up and returned to bed, having come in contact with nothing but A. R. A. instruments, needles, sutures, sponges, dressings, bandages, iodine, chloroform, etc.

"The surgeon remarked that both he and the patients would have been in a most helpless plight but for the A. R. A. supplies.

"Several eye operations were observed where the patient came in contact with no commodity other than those given by the A. R. A.

"One old lady who had a double cataract and who had been totally blind for a long period of time, broke forth in an audible prayer of thanks as soon as the first cataract was removed and kept it up until she was returned to her bed. She prayed for 'all the Americans, their mothers, their wives and their children' in a most fervent manner."

LADY LUCK BOONS

GOOD FOR MRS. McNARY

Wins the White Enamel Gas Range of Good Housekeeping Shop

"There must be some mistake. It can't be that I won that range," said Mrs. K. McNary of 351 West Doran, when her brother showed her the story in the Glendale Press last night, announcing that number 1193 entitled the holder to the white enamel gas range offered by the Good Housekeeping shop.

It proved to be true, however, and Mrs. McNary, who had been wishing for just such a range for some time, and had planned on stretching the family purse to cover the price at some early date, accepted the news of her luck with tears in her eyes.

Yesterday morning, when the range was delivered to her residence, she told of the day she visited the Good Housekeeping booth at the exposition. When the firm's representative handed her the ticket, she told him he might just as well keep it, because as she expressed it, "she had never had any luck." The representative told her that one could never tell, and he proved to be right, for the unexpected happened.

At 7:30 Tuesday morning, Mr. McNary was waiting for the doors to open at the Good Housekeeping shop on South Brand boulevard, in order to claim the range before the next in line should fall heir to the good fortune.

GLENDALE BUILDER AIDS COMMUNITY CONSTRUCTION

O. G. Thompson of Glenwood Road Is Active in Civic Affairs

Building a community means more than mere house building, according to O. G. Thompson, 618 West Glenwood road, who is one of the successful building contractors here. That the erection of any number of houses does not constitute the upbuilding community, is his belief, and in carrying out his ideas of civic development, Mr. Thompson has been particularly active in every movement for the growth and betterment of Glendale.

He has a record of activity in school bond campaigns, and various other civic measures. At the present time he is one of the active boosters for the civic center, which has claimed wide attention here since it was first proposed.

Mr. Thompson was formerly president of the Carpenters' Union here, and is at the present time president of the Glendale Labor Council where he exercises a definite influence for the betterment of labor conditions.

Coming to Glendale just before the "boom," which has lasted for three years, with no signs of ending, Mr. Thompson was thrown into the flourishing building campaign then started. He has to his credit, among other fine homes, the beautiful residence of Horace L. Baker on Grand View near Brand.

This comprises a seven-room English style house, and large garage. He held the contract and supervised the construction for the home of Charles B. Guthrie, who recently took possession of the attractive colonial style home on Grand View. Following the completion of H. D. Dibern's new residence at Chester Place, just off Kenneth Road, Mr. Thompson entered into a contract to build a large foothill residence for Mrs. E. Mundendorf of Los Angeles at Filtridge.

Mr. Thompson, throughout his building business, makes a practice of patronizing Glendale firms in the purchase of materials.

WALKER JEWELRY STORE IMPROVES APPOINTMENTS

Following the trend in Glendale's growth, which has been one of the seven wonders in Southern California, J. E. Walker, proprietor of the Walker Jewelry store, 116 East Broadway, has adopted plans for remodeling his store and increasing its efficiency through the adoption of many of the latest jewelry store appointments.

In order to facilitate this work, Mr. Walker is offering everything now included in his stock, to be sold at auction, beginning tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. For more than two weeks, and perhaps three, the auction will continue, two sales taking place daily, at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

"We have been here since 1911," said Mr. Walker, "and have witnessed the growth of Glendale from the small inconsequential village to the thriving metropolis it is today. It demands that the merchants keep pace and adopt up-to-date methods, and I have decided to thoroughly remodel the store, where I have been located since coming to Glendale."

The Walker Jewelry store is next to the oldest business in Glendale, Mr. Walker also owns a similar store in Burbank, where he enjoys a wide patronage.

COLORED SANDAL NO PROBLEM TO CLEAN

M. C. Smith of Pendroy's Makes Known Fine Points in Footwear

Shall I or shall I not purchase a pair of the colored sandals? Are they considered good taste, and if I do buy them, how can I clean them?

These and many other questions have puzzled the minds of members of the fair sex since the advent of the colored sandal and sports shoes. The shoe dealer who is accustomed to rendering aid in deciding these momentous questions in footwear, is in a position to give the correct advice.

"There should be no question as to the method of cleaning the colored sandal," said M. C. Smith, one of the managers of the shoe department at Pendroy's.

"The cleansing cream used to clean white kid shoes will serve the purpose for any color of kid, and these sandals are all made of kid. The tan polish that is almost colorless may also be used. Colored footwear predominates at the present time and enjoys considerable popularity. We have a big demand for it now, but cannot tell how long it will be in vogue."

"One of the newest things in footwear, which we have just received, is the oyster grey oxford, trimmed in pearl grey. These are made of smoked elk, and will stand washing in soap and water."

M. C. Smith and C. P. Moore, managers of the shoe department, are expecting a large shipment of some of the latest models within a few days.

NORMA TALMADGE SHOWS ARTISTIC POWERS

"Within the Law," which began an engagement at the T. D. & L. theatre last night, makes even more secure the leadership of Norma Talmadge as a dramatic star.

A classic of the American stage, in which Jane Cowl made her biggest hit, this Bayard Vellier play is now a classic of the silent drama, and Norma Talmadge winning fresh laurels. Love, romance and thrills combine to make it as fascinating and as exciting as a motion picture can be. Much credit, of course, must go to the genius of the director, Frank Lloyd, and to the splendid support of an unusually fine cast.

Norma Talmadge, in the role of Mary Turner, a department store girl, railroaded to prison for a theft she did not commit, is a heart-stirring figure. On the completion of her prison term she vows to "get square" with the store owner who was responsible for the miscarriage of justice, but determines to stay always "within the law."

Thus does she become the head of an organized band of blackmailers and home-breakers and entraps Dick Gilder, the son of the merchant, only to learn that she herself loves the young man.

ELECTRIC MOTIF IN BRIDE'S GIFT

"The average middle-aged woman will tell the bride-to-be that her life is before her; but that she must be prepared to meet the hardships as well as the happiness, to share the sorrows as well as the smiles," says J. A. Newton, of the Newton Electric company. "Looking back into the early years of her own married life she recalls the hysterical gladness and the romance which at first loaned strength for the performance of the duties of 'getting settled'; then she relives her realization that love doesn't darn socks, wash dishes or cook meals; and finally she hastens on through the years when household tasks were struggled through, sick or well, with the growing feeling that life is a cold, hard proposition in which today's problems must be met today or they will be magnified four-fold tomorrow."

"And therein lies a thought!"

One might almost say a moral! When the problem arises—"What shall I give as a wedding gift?"—what could be more appropriate than something carrying into the newly-made home an element of comfort and happiness, an assurance of better health and of less tiresome effort? In other words why not give the modern bride a modern gift for her modern home, a gift combining all the desirable features—beauty, utility, durability and that little tinge of luxury which would cause her to struggle along without it at first unless some thoughtful friend presented it to her. All of these features are embodied in any one of a long list of meticulously acceptable electrical gifts, each and every one of which would soon prove worth its weight in gold in the bride's new home."

GUEST ROOM ACCESSORIES
As novel as they are useful are tiny hats made of colored crepe paper, whose trimming conceals needle, thread and thimble. These are charming little guest room accessories.

PORTLAND BOY PALO ALTO ED

[By Associated Press]
STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., June 7.—Phillip Newill, a junior student from Portland, Ore., has been elected editor of the Daily Palo Alto, a Stanford student newspaper for the fall session of next year. He was unopposed in the staff election. Newill is at present managing editor of the student publication and a department editor of the Stanford Quad, the yearbook published annually by the junior class.

CANTON CREPE POPULAR
It is predicted that the coming summer will witness a pronounced vogue of white. Ideal for the simple draped frocks of the moment is heavy Canton crepe covered with exquisite self-toned Chinese embroidery. It comes only in white, but is said to take dye beautifully. Another use to which this crepe may be put is in making lamp shades.

Truths in Epigram

It would hardly be an exaggeration to say, that all the great truths relating to society and government have been first heard in the solemn protests of martyred patriotism, or the loud cries of crushed and starving labor.—Emerson.

Marriage may often be a stormy lake, but celibacy is almost always a muddy horsepond.—Peacock.

FOOLING THE COLLECTOR

The charge is made that many of the supposed art treasures sold in this country are spurious. They are said to be the work of copyists who, in faithfulness of imitation, display a skill that shows almost real genius. Included in the allegations is the statement that the Metropolitan Museum of Art has been extensively victimized. Proof of this still is lacking. Probably such proof will not be adduced. The accusation originates in Europe where much jealousy has been aroused by the activity of American collectors. Many a canvas and marble, and many a rare fabric, the history of which had been known, has found its way into this country. In instances, it will have to be admitted, chicanery has been used in accomplishing this. Concerning the character of the articles in question there is no doubt. It is the fact that they are genuine, and that Europe desired to retain them, that has created ill feeling.

There is reason to believe, however, that private collectors of art have in many instances been swindled. It is not strange that they should have had such experience. Often they knew nothing, whatever of any branch of art, save that its products were costly. Having the money, they wanted specimens of the art, not for love of beauty, but for the purpose of display. They hired agents, who, knowing their principals to be ignorant laughed at the pose of them as connoisseurs, and proceeded to lead them with junk. Collectors of antiques of whatever kind have been subjected to similar treatment. Old chairs, old pottery, anything in fact that meets a prevalent fancy, may be manufactured in quantity and given so complete an air of age as to deceive even the expert. Many a collector glazes over his hoard quite unaware that its integrity is honeycombed by counterfeits.

LOS ANGELES KEEPS HAPPY

Los Angeles has assumed high importance as a manufacturing center. The value of its material output gives it ninth place among the cities of the United States. The prospects are that soon it will rank eighth. The manufacturing are 5000 in number, the number constantly growing. They deal with a range of activities from silk to mining machinery.

Just at this time there is in sections east of California a decided falling off in the volume of construction. In the south end of this state, the demand for every class of building increases. There is difficulty in keeping up with it. In every direction within many miles of the city, homes are being erected with a speed that is changing the physical aspect rapidly. Los Angeles continues in this respect to lead all but New York and Chicago. Unless industrial disputes in those places be adjusted, it is easy to vision the western metropolis at the head of the list.

This is not said for the purpose of exalting Los Angeles, although its people are entitled to the greatest credit for the faith they have had in their city, a faith now fully justified. It is said because conditions throughout the fortunate area known as the "financial white spot." When the world knows that Los Angeles prospers, it should know that the thriving cities adjacent to it are sharing fully in that prosperity and helping to create and maintain it.

The old notion that southern California was but scenery, citrus fruits and climate, belongs to other days.

BUSINESS AND THE DWELLING

The earlier the people of a city decide upon zoning, the better for the future growth of the place. It may be made to develop harmoniously by proper regulation, or through neglect, it may be permitted to run wild. In a section long utilized for dwellings, in which beautiful homes have been maintained for years, the invasion of business is regarded as a calamity. On the vacant lot next to a mansion may appear a one story building of flimsy construction. Its presence mars the outlook, lessens values, and results ultimately in the extinction or the homes.

There is plenty of space for business without infringing on domestic life. In these days of rapid transit over paved streets, and with a telephone in every house, there is no occasion for a business to press its way into the front yards of customers, to the detriment of the locality. If a city plan a wide boulevard to the sea, designed to add to comeliness and comfort, there will be a deluge of applicants for the right to line this with business of the peanut variety. If the applicants have their way, the plan for civic adornment comes to naught.

Restrictions are essential. They serve to protect the rights of citizens. Certain parts of every local center of population are adapted to certain uses. There is a place for the factory, for the store, for the apartment house and for the home. No good purpose is served when these various local elements are permitted to grow without pattern into an inartistic jumble.

New use is being found for the radio in broadcasting information for police use. It is possible now for the news of a robbery and a description of the criminals, together with the route supposed to have been taken, to be flashed to every police and sheriff headquarters.

When Senator Smoot remarked the other day that the peace of the world lay with English speaking peoples, he said that which, in the slang of the day might be termed a mouthful.

The shooting of a youth on suspicion that he intended to steal melons was altogether too severe. It would have been too severe even had the suspicion been well founded, which seems not to have been the case.

WITHOUT THE "H" PLEASE

There was recent occasion to mention Ben Jonson in this paper. "Rare Ben Jonson" has been a common characterization of the famous dramatist of Elizabethan times. There have been many individuals bearing the name of Johnson or Johnston, some of them very creditably, but only a single Jonson has found immortal renown in letters. Perhaps this is putting it too strongly, since letters themselves may not be immortal.

A difficulty arises almost invariably when an editor tries to say anything about Jonson, for if the printer does not know that the name ought to have an h, the proof reader is almost sure to entertain notions on this subject. They have a recollection of Dr. Samuel Johnson, or of Andrew or Hiram. If they recall Jonson at all, it is only as a name that they had seen somewhere misspelled.

Jonson, it is believed, may have written a part of the vast product usually ascribed to Shakespeare. It was in this connection that there had been recent comment about him. Nothing of the sort is attributed to Samuel, Andrew or Hiram. Thus by a little thought, confusion may be avoided. If the printer and the proof reader were to remember that Jonson was known as Ben, this might help them to differentiate. Jonson chose to go along without the h, and seems to have done fairly well. It does not appear in his signature, and hence there is no good reason for thrusting it in at this late date.

In writing of Ben Jonson kindly omit the h. This was his custom and courtesy suggests that it be followed.

The Pawing Habit Ad Lib

ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY
An Italian princess of an ancient and distinguished family is in our midst.

This little incident has caused a flutter among the women, who are all anxious to pay homage to the famous visitor. Donna Santa Borghese, being well bred and amiable, is appreciative, if a bit astounded at some of our American methods. To quote from an interview which she gave to a graceful and effective writer:

"Being of Latin blood I am unable to follow the enthusiastic stride. I regret.

"And the laying on of hands which is so generally practiced is new to me. I have never before been fingered. I am sorry I can not reciprocate.

"As they talk they tap me. I am led by the elbow to appointments to which I thought I could walk myself."

Many an American woman who has suffered long if none too patiently under this same system of "fingering" and "tapping" will arise here and call the princess blessed!

How many of us have been "led by the elbow" to appointments to which we thought we could walk ourselves? How many of us have time and again fled from some public gathering because our nerves refused longer to endure the pawing of our persons. Are not "pawing" and "saying" and "fingering" great American vices which mark us as crude, over-eager, unpolished?

As a nation Americans are long suffering and almost stupidly patient under discomfort, but it requires more than boyish pliancy to endure unmoved the continuous manhandling to which American women are subjected at public gatherings; while, so far as the men are concerned, shoulder slapping is as common as real estate speculation among them.

Among the women it's "dearie" and "honey," while the men express good will, Babbitt fashion, with "old hoss" and kindred terms of masculine endearment.

A visiting princess has called our attention to it. Will it do any good?

Probably not, for we seem incapable of showing kind feeling save through some form of laying on of hands. Yet there are sensitive people who quiver under handling like a spirited horse under the lash. Recently I was talking with a woman who had just resigned from all the clubs to which she formerly belonged. She stated her reasons so:

"I went to the clubs for companionship and mental improvement, but I seldom spoke to any one whom I wished to see. Between me and such people I usually met a delegation of elbow pinchers, women who did not hesitate to seize me by force if necessary—even when the force was applied playfully it was still force—and hold me means they engaged me in an unwilling conversation."

"I returned from most club meetings with blue spots on my arms and my neck was so often embraced by strangers that I felt as if club women were developing the constricting qualities of the Anaconda. I just could not stand it, and they could not get my point of view, so I withdrew my memberships."

No wonder the princess is "unable to reciprocate." It may surprise her to learn that there are American women who share her inability in this direction and who would be happy to be spared the "fingering" and "tapping" which she has found astonishing.

DICTIONARYLAND
(Find the error in this article)

A hyphenated compound word is distinguished from the ordinary syllabicated word by the German double hyphen; as, post-office. This suggestion should help you when you are looking up words in your dictionary; especially in the New Standard.

Some dictionaries, however, use only a single hyphen to distinguish a compound word; as, post-office.

When you are examining the respelling of words to determine correct pronunciation, you will observe one or more keys to guide you. Look up, for example, the pronunciation of a vowel by the position of the key letter in the key word at the top or bottom of the page, or in the front of the book.

Your use of the dictionary will be made much more effective and expeditious if you will put a few hours study on the key you are going to depend upon for your guidance.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Sleep. We think of it without wonder. We lie down to it without fear. Often we look forward to it with joy.

We arise from it with refreshment. And yet nobody knows quite what it is.

We have had many explanations of it. Many theories with regard to it.

The overcoming of consciousness with unconsciousness.

The quieting of the senses.

The survival only of the reflexes.

The beating of the heart and the functioning of the respiration without direction.

Of course, the heart beats and the organs function without direction at all times.

The process of digestion continues. For nature has designed that we shall live in spite of ourselves.

She has determined that the individual under normal circumstances shall survive for many years.

But sleep, while it is common to us all, is one of her mysteries.

The active mind is dulled and stilled and finally ceases to function.

In sound sleep there is no dreaming, which is referred to sometimes as subconscious thinking.

There is an entire absence of cerebration.

Hours pass without our knowledge. Unconsciousness supervenes at eleven at night and it is eight in the morning and we have had no consciousness of the passage of time.

We lie inert and unconscious, while the world travels upon its way. Dead to the world, as the saying is.

And yet none fears this unconscious state. No one rebels at it. No one cries out with terror and dread. We accept it as a natural function of the mind and body.

We are tired. Let's go to bed.

The restoration of wasted tissues is begun. Nature makes use of this time of unconsciousness to do a lot of her repair work.

For we are not around breaking things down while she is building them up.

She sets her workmen to the tasks she has taken their places.

For Nature is working all the time what seem to be miracles.

She is the one miracle worker of the world. She brings the leaf at the spring time. She paints the flower with rare color. She gives it fragrance.

And when the mind and body are tired from thinking and striving and working and worrying, she wraps about them all her soft mantle of sleep.

She brings unconsciousness. We call it sleep.

And whether it is for an hour or ten hours, we do not fear.

And if it be for ten hours or ten thousand years, why should we fear.

It is Nature's benediction to weariness and care.

Songs of the Poets

A Song the Grass Sings—By Charles G. Blandon

The violet is much too shy. The rose too little so; I think I'll ask the buttercup If I may be her beau.

When winds go by, I'll nod to her And she will nod to me.

And when the mower cuts us down, Together we will pass, I smiling at the buttercup, She smiling at the grass.

ORDER AS FIRST NECESSITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE other day Chinese bandits looted an express train on the way from Shanghai to Peking and captured and took away to their stronghold in the mountains a number of prisoners.

This incident has caused wide discussion and is quite sufficient to be the seed of international difficulties.

There is one point in the whole matter which should not be overlooked.

It showed what is the matter with China and incidentally what is the matter with the world. And the matter is lack of order.

Order is the first necessity of communal human life. It even comes before justice and mercy.

It showed what is the matter with China and incidentally our opinion about the needs of the country, but vastly more necessary than these is that we should all play the rules of the game.

And if we do not have order the only alternative is chaos, which is the mother of violence and cruelty.

The very foundation of civilization is the respect for law. Those who are trying to bring the last constitutional amendment into disrepute because they disagree with the opinion of the majority of the voters are doing a good deal more damage than they imagine.

If the State of New York starts out to nullify the provisions of the Constitution it engages upon a course of conduct, which, if carried to its legitimate conclusion, would make the end of private property and individual rights.

For there can be no protection of the ownership of property, there can be no security for the rights of the person unless there is proper order.

An army is as efficient in proportion as it is well trained and knows how to keep step, and order is quite as essential to civilized society as it is in a military organization.

Where every one does as he pleases no one can do as he pleases.

The difficulty with China is that there seems to be no central government that is capable of imposing order upon the general masses.

Those who have traveled about much over the globe have a profound respect for Great Britain. That country does not always act with justice, it has been charged, and it does some things that many object to, but the one thing that it unquestionably maintains is order. Where you find the British flag you find order. There may be wrongs in India at present, but it is nothing like the wrong there would be if the Pax Britannica did not rest upon the land.

We too often forget that order comes before justice because there can be no justice without order. And too often we seek to overturn the tyranny of the rich and powerful by violence, forgetting that no matter how evil tyranny may be in a well ordered country, it cannot be so evil as chaos.

And it is order that is the friend of the weak and the poor, for in a condition of disorder it is the strong and violent who rule. The rights of the common people and of the masses can never be attained any other way than by order. (Copyright, 1923, by Dr. Frank Crane)

Now that she is in the penitentiary, there is no occasion for her to be in print.

Many amendments are proposed to the state constitution. Perhaps the legislators desire something more to ignore.

A Mexican youth played at bull-fighting and was killed. That was a poor imitation.

A film actress was "saved from Chinese brigands" by not being on the spot. So were about one hundred million other Americans.

If there really is over-production of oil it might be expected to show in the price of gasoline.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

A man got a divorce the other day because of the devotion of his wife to a "spirit husband." The applicant for the divorce was the material husband. Upon him fell the duty of paying the bills, but the domestic establishment was run on the say-so of the spirit person. The material husband resented this.

An incident of the kind was needed just now to illustrate the folly of the stuff that Conan Doyle is engaged in teaching. Of course the distinguished gentleman would decline to mix up socially with a bad lot of spirits, but it is reasonable to suppose that there are bad spirits as well as good. These have been known to project themselves into places where the medium and his trained troupe of waiters have been performing. They have been profane, obscene, or prone to joking rudely. So persistent has been their scaly conduct that often it has broken up the whole business temporarily, to the scandal of the faithful.

But even a bad spirit ought to have some concern for mundane regulations and habits of thought. If desirous of becoming "spirit husband" to anybody, the selection surely should have been of some female legally entitled to a husband. To search out a married woman and coax her into a condition that has the color of bigamy, is, to say the least, a trick of which no gentleman could be guilty.

Twenty confidence operators, the type known as bunko men, were convicted in Denver last week. All must go to the penitentiary for terms of years. The leaders received sentences having a maximum of ten years. The individual reckoned to be the brains of the gang is 73 years of age. Probably the bunko business has ended for him.

The convictions marked an extraordinary triumph of justice. The bunko thief is a hard citizen to convict. Living by fraud, he is wise and wary; wise in the sense of having a rat's cunning. Ordinarily he thinks little of arrest.

Several seasons ago bunko men fleeced a Texan named Norfleet. Ever since then he has been on their trail, the most tireless and skillful of sleuths. The Denver tragedy to crookdom was due to him. Norfleet is to be reckoned a public benefactor.

Several San Francisco brokers are now under arrest, unless they have succeeded in running away. If under arrest, they are in jail unless they have been able to raise $25,000 cash bond each.

These brokers represent the meanest sort of swindlers, provided of course that they are guilty as charged. The accusation is that they have been selling worthless securities, known to them to be worthless. Such operation is a mean form of stealing.

A furniture house was damaged the other day by fire to the extent of $100,000. A few months earlier the same owners had suffered even a heavier loss by similar disaster. In both cases incendiarism is believed to have been the cause.

Ordinarily a clew to such a crime might easily be found. Suspicion naturally would be directed to the individual bearing the owners a grudge. But under the teaching now so common, that everybody not possessing property, becomes by that circumstance the enemy of any one who does possess property, the clew becomes lost in the maze of possibilities.

A Santa Ana man will serve one year in jail for having driven an automobile while he was drunk, and by his recklessness caused the death of a girl.

Moonshine whisky doubtless has wrecked many a home, but seldom in the fashion recently observed in Los Angeles. In this instance a still exploded and the house was all shot to pieces.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The street car was just moderately full this afternoon. Not breathlessly full. A young mother got on board, with her arms full of bundles and accompanied by a boy of eight or nine years. A husky, red-checked, hard-headed little kid. A man rose to give the young mother his seat.

"Sit down, Bobby," said the young mother to the boy.

No word of thanks to the man who had given her the seat. That sort of woman never does render thanks. She is of the sort that firmly believes that because Creator made her a woman those he-made men are her ordained servitors.

"I didn't give my seat to that boy, madam," said the man. "I gave it to you. He is perfectly able to stand up."

"Why, the idea!" said she, indignant. "Why, the idea! How dare you!"

The man said no more. She said no more. Bobby turned a knowing, sour little face up to his mother and grinned, a selfish, sour little grin. One often gets a better view of things from an outside angle. It was just as plain to me that she is laying up trouble for herself as it was plain that it really isn't her fault.

She is making—has made—the boy selfish and ill-mannered and mean. Traits of that sort always win their reward in the end. All his life he will be unhappy, without knowing just why. The man who knows himself detested cannot be gay-hearted. But, after all, it really isn't his mother's fault. She is soft and tender and motherly and she would give the heart out of her bosom to pleasure that poor, spoiled little boy.

But she lacks the common sense to see how she is injuring him. One can see that by a glance at her. Just as she lacks the common sense to say "Thank you" for a street car seat.

One cannot properly blame a four-cylindered car because it isn't a twin six.

The Eagle Rock radio program, to be broadcasted from the Times radio station, KHJ, on June 12, at 8 o'clock in the evening, is virtually completed, although there are several numbers promised that are not definitely listed yet.

Following is the program which will be interspersed between selections with music and general information on the advantages of Eagle Rock as a "homeland": Marimba solo, Edson Crosby; whistling solo, Miss Hope Taylor; stunts on the bugle, Raymond L. Orwig; selections by the Occidental boys' glee club; vocal solo, Mrs. Paul Elderkin (with bell accompaniment); songs, Hare sisters' quartet; instrumental selections, The Lippold family, playing on the piano, clarinet, cornet and French horn.

There will also be a grand opera soloist on the program, but as yet that number has not been definitely announced. Other numbers may be added to this program before the date of presentation, but the present line-up is one worthy of entertaining the hundreds of people who tune in for the KHJ programs, and will serve as a splendid advertisement for Eagle Rock. The Eagle Rock Realty Board is in charge of the program.

The Presbyterian and Congregational churches will run a daily vacation Bible school for six weeks during the summer months. Children will be trained and entertained in these schools and mothers will be able to pursue their household duties without wondering continually where Johnny and Susy are playing, and if they are out on the street, or fretting because they do not show up at the appointed lunch hour.

Besides the help which these schools are to the parents, they also serve to keep the minds of the children occupied in a pleasant, entertaining, as well as instructive way. They are taught hand work, told stories, trained in various drills, and given many little songs to learn which provide them with entertainment enough to make the school a period of relaxation, differing entirely from the studies of the regular daily school.

Some of the other churches are considering instituting the same term of Bible study.

About 25 members of the Business and Professional Women's club met at the public library last night. The constitution and by-laws were acted upon, and it was decided that the next meeting, one week from Thursday, will be the final preliminary meeting before actual club work begins, and officers will be elected at that time. Nominations for the officers were presented last night.

Plans for the class in gymnastic dancing were discussed, and instead of placing the work under the instruction of a teacher from Occidental college, Miss Marian Jones, who teaches in the Los Angeles schools, was appointed to see if an instructor from the playground department could not be secured. Now that Eagle Rock is a part of Los Angeles, many present who are connected with the city work felt that the Los Angeles organizations interested in similar pursuits to those of the club here would gladly take up the work here and aid the newly formed association in the formation and instruction of those classes which might be similar to those under the playground director's supervision.

The American Legion Auxiliary is counting on getting a large crowd out for the card party to be held Friday evening of this week at the Bessolo residence, 155 Ellenwood drive. Five hundred and bridge will be the featured games of the evening, and delicious home prepared refreshments will be served. Score cards will be 35 cents instead of 25 as previously announced.

New officers of the Community Players are: Geo. Paige Willey, president; Mrs. J. B. Squire, vice-president; Mrs. Ethel Woodhouse, secretary; Mrs. H. L. Terry, treasurer; Frederick Beach, business manager; Mrs. A. G. Reilly, Mrs. E. Lowry Fischer, Mr. Gregory, Miss Ellen Galpin, directors.

The coupon books, which sell for $6 will entitle the holders to attend 12 performances, and will be put on sale as soon as the organization is assured that their use of the Central school will be satisfactory with the Los Angeles board of education in the future. A letter requesting permission to continue putting on productions at the school has been forwarded to the L. A. board and the Community Players are awaiting the reply with considerable interest. It is doubtful if any definite action will be taken upon the matter until the new educational board is in charge, as all small matters will doubtless be tabled for them if they refer to matters which will come up after the present board has finished this season's work.

AUXILIARY FOOD SALE SET FOR JUNE 23

At the Legion Auxiliary meeting Monday afternoon the members decided to hold a cooked food sale June 23. Former sales have been highly successful, and as a variation from the usual line of good things offered, it is announced that only baked viands will be on sale. These will include baked beans, a variety of pies, all the favorite cakes and home-made bread.

EAST END P.-T. A. WILL MEET ON FRIDAY

The East End P.-T. A. meets at the East End school on Friday, June 8. "Eagle Rock," the song dedicated to the Eagle Rock Improvement association, will be played by Madame Shirley. Mr. Shirley composed the music. Many other numbers of interest are arranged for the program.

S. F. STREET IS SINKING

[By Associated Press] SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., June 6.—Market street is sinking. Since the fire of 1906, San Francisco's principal thoroughfare, between First street and the Ferry building, a distance of about four blocks, has sunk 17 inches, according to City Engineer M. M. O'Shaughnessy.

The fact was announced in connection with the laying of a new roadbed for street cars, when considerable filling was found necessary. Ever since the old waterfront line was pushed out into the bay from First street to its present location, Mr. O'Shaughnessy said, Market street has been steadily settling.

At the present rate of drop it is believed that the Ferry building, Southern Pacific general headquarters building, Matson building and many other large structures on lower Market street will be renting suites in Davy Jones' Locker, about a thousand years hence.

THE JUDGMENT

You can tell other people just what they should do. You are glib when you tell them, and I much as you;

We pass hasty judgments and say thus and so. And we are quite certain we know what we know. We make declarations and make them with vim. Of rules of right conduct for her or for him. We are the arbiters of conduct alone. But—how are we running these selves of our own?

We stand up our neighbors and judge them and weigh. We frown and condemn what they do and they say.

We set up our standards of morals and right. And bid them accept them or pass from the light.

We make proclamations and make them right strong. For never we think that we too might be wrong. We peck and we sniff and we snort and we groan. But—how are we judging these selves of our own?

Oh, brother, my brother, and this self of me. The motives in our eyes let us labor to see. The motives and the beams—to ourselves let's be just. And judge men with mercy, if judge them we must. For life is a struggle and Heaven is far. And I know I'm much as all other men are. So I'll stand myself up and I'll judge me alone. And find how I'm running this self of my own.

WILDCATS MAY PLAY IN EAST

[By Associated Press]

TUCSON, Ariz., June 6.—Having conquered the west, the Wildcat baseball team of the University of Arizona is turning to the east. They have won three straight games from Southern California, and inflicted two defeats upon the Stanford men. Manager Louis A. Slover is investigating the possibilities of an eastern trip next year. Regarding the contemplated eastern invasion, Coach James F. McKel declared he feels the team is ready to negotiate a longer journey and that if the eastern trip cannot be arranged, he will try for a game in Japan or some of the Pacific islands, who annually meet teams from the United States.

A quick way to remove the taint from other people's money is to get your own hands on it.

JOHNSONS MAKE QUICK TRIP TO YOSEMITE

Cover 250 Miles a Day in 1025 Mile Tour

Making a trip of 1025 miles, and covering 250 miles a day, a party of Glendaleans including Mr. and Mrs. J. Will Johnson, granddaughter, Edith Lenore Lucas, and son, Arthur R. Johnson and wife, motorized to Yosemite last Wednesday and returned to Glendale Monday night.

An unseasonal snow had fallen the day before the party arrived at the park, and on the second day, rain made the weather disagreeable, but, nevertheless, according to Arthur R. Johnson, who was on duty again yesterday at the office of the Suburban Realty company, the trip was a most enjoyable one. Entrance to Yosemite was made over the Wawona pass, which was the only road open, the low road being closed due to the heavy snows. Despite the inclement weather, there was a large number of guests at the famous summer resort, and although no one felt inclined to weather the cold and take long hikes, the time was pleasantly spent.

"I have been over almost all of the mountain ranges in the United States," said Mr. Johnson, "but I don't think there is any place that can compare with the Yosemite for beauty of scenery. The presence of so much snow added much to the beauty of the surroundings." The party went over the ridge route, enroute to Yosemite, going as far north as Fresno. Stops were made at the Santa Maria Inn, where the hospitality was most cordial, and at the Vendome, San Jose. The return was made via the coast route.

GETS FOSSILS TWO CYCLES OLD

[By Associated Press]

TUCSON, Ariz., June 6.—Two fossilized mammoth tusks are the latest acquisition of the state museum at the University of Arizona here.

The relics were uncovered recently by workmen on a ranch near Benson, Ariz., at a depth of about ten feet. The tusks are believed by Director Byron Cummings of the museum to be from a mammoth of the Pleistocene age, which would make their age approximately 50,000 years. The minerals of the ancient lake bed where they were deposited had turned the ivory of the tusks to silica.
